The Elden Ring Online, which is based on the Elden Ring Online Action RPG developed by Capcom, is a new genre of RPG where you become a powerful demi-god. It is a free-to-play, action RPG that is free of monetary rewards and focuses on connecting people together and on developing and sharing each other's progress in the game. The world of the game is vast, with an open field for exploration and bustling towns full of interesting items and people.

*Advertisement: If you have purchased a new copy of the game, you will automatically receive items such as t-shirts, and while supplies last, content such as the phone case, pet, and character. Remember, we are not satisfied with "better than Skyrim". It is the only one on the list that looks better than the 2011 version. Did it have more polygons? They have all been replaced with tris. Did they have more characters? This one has twice as many. If you have a PS3 you won't have any trouble playing it. I'm sure it will be available on other platforms later (Sony is always tight-lipped about it's games-forever, so I'm not surprised they haven't mentioned any plans). @ToS: exactly, Skyrim doesn't look better to me. It's just "new", they call them "enhanced", whatever. @GS: I'd love to see a proper game with green buildings and cinematics (Just like Witcher 1/2 were), especially since it has a topic on Digital Foundry which says it's running on ps3. I'm not doubting it, so no need for tone-trolling. @Namiko: If it has the same quality as Dragon Age Origins, that is probably good enough for me, no need to go through the trouble of downloading the 2011 version and installing it. @DasGeschichte: He isn't limited to the ones you mention. You have to look for "enhanced" or "special editions" on the Steam page for each game. The "special editions" usually come with HD screensavers, extra content, etc. how is it that people think reviews on video game websites change "fate of the world" type stuff? as if that ever happens, that's not the intention of some game, etc... It doesn't change their fate, it just affects an individual game/company

EnjoySports Pipeline: Desert Dogs are a badass squad 5:00 PM Monday October 5, 2013 By Dana Ford The Huntsman and her gang of canine cohorts turn around a dangerous Russian armored vehicle that might have been overrun by rebels from the Ukraine. The dogs, however, aren't in it for the glory. The team, who worked for 11 months for $60,000 in the Desert Storm retreat, aren't simply along for the ride. They're a 10-strong SWAT unit backed up by an armored vehicle. Some things, in fact, are more important than fame and glory. The demand for trainers of military working dogs has increased over the past decade in New Zealand as part of a nationwide clean up of the country's customs and immigration service, says Owen Hogg. In the past four years, three training centres have been established in the country. The minister of immigration is the manager of the new training centre at the Bankstown Train Squadron at Camp Hill in Sydney and the one in Upper Hutt in Wellington. The plan is to re-train the old customs dogs and to put them out to work on the immigration side of the department.
