Technology plays a huge role in this year's updated engine. The new engine's 'computational fluid dynamics' (CFD) creates a fluid-like simulation for the ball. This means the ball behaves differently when it's in the air, on the ground, off the ground, or in a tight space. This new technology also means the ball no longer becomes invisible when it goes into a goal, can be deflected when hit and creates a more accurate curve of the ball as it goes past players. The goalkeepers are also able to block the ball and not move with their hands as in the past. This system gives them more accurate reactions and better goalkeeper AI – they don't always dive to the ball when they think they've blocked it, and they react naturally when the ball hits the woodwork. The goalkeeper strategy has been modernised. Goalkeepers use the net, the wall and the long throws more successfully than in the past, and have more options to become beaten. A New Goalkeeper AI In the new goalkeeper AI, players have three different levels of control over the goalkeeper: pre-emptive, reactive, and reactive with touch. Goalkeepers have two options for pre-emptive control: standing off, and shouting. Standing off means the goalkeeper will not decide when to dive, instead the goalkeeper will react as they see the ball. When a goalkeeper chooses to shout, the simulation will decide when to dive. One of the new goalkeepers' options is to dive on the first attack, the second attack, or when the goalkeeper shouts. If a goalkeeper uses the pre-emptive option, they can also choose to run and chase the ball in the penalty area. In the past, goalkeepers didn't have options to chase the ball, but players in FIFA would kick the ball towards the goalkeeper. Reactive control means the goalkeeper will react to the ball at any time. Reactive, the goalkeeper has a 3D barrier to react to the ball, and when the ball enters the barrier, the goalkeeper dives out of the way. Reactive with touch means the ball is "guaranteed" to touch the goalkeeper. It will then be treated as a shot on goal and the goalkeeper has to block the ball. The new goalkeeper AI will also react better to low, high and long balls and uses the woodwork better. The new goalkeeper
