Search for or add printers and faxes. You must enter valid credentials for this account. Be careful of which products you buy. If you don't know the exact product you need, test the parts at least on one board that is actually the product. The reason for this is that sometimes the beta board may have different display, touch and other things that could confuse the buyer. Remember that, as well as the board itself, every component of the board may be different from one another. Check whether all the parts for the board are included in the box. For example, they can check the box with the material that the product is made up of. Then, they can try to contact the manufacturer of the product to find out whether it contains all of the parts and components of the product and whether the material provided by the manufacturer is right.
