Radimpex Tower 7

registry virtual machine EverNote Notes; Microsoft Outlook Express 6.0; Microsoft Office 2000 (the file are in c:\windows\system32\config\system) Hi, I have a laptop that was formatted recently and data was lost when I installed a software. I have recovered all my data but my application files are missing. Can anyone tell me how to recover these files, please? A: I have recovered my data, thanks for your suggestions. here are some details. Tower 7 is a commercial application which is available from It was pretty difficult to figure out the location of my applications, but here it is, just in case anyone else is ever in a similar situation: c:\Program Files\Tower 7 Firstly I set up the environment variables: This is a command from the admin tools of Tower 7. I set it up in each user profile using the Registry Editor. HKLM\Software\Microsoft\Windows\CurrentVersion\Run Under the shell and botton in the registry key a key was created called "Tower 7" and it was pointing to the program I was looking for. c:\Program Files\Tower 7\Tower 7.exe Basically the "Tower 7" key is pointing to my Tower 7 application. But the files I needed weren't here... I set up the computer to use Network Share and I stored my application files here: \\servername\sharefolder\appfolder In Tower 7 the directory you are looking for is: c:\Program Files\Tower 7\appfolder where appfolder is the share name and sharefolder is the location of the share. I had made the mistake of thinking the files I needed were here: C:\Documents and Settings\username\Application Data\Tower 7\ which I knew wasn't right. I had to set up another Network Share and use the new directory structure for my application files and I now have all my files back. Q: force spring to return Class instead of String from PropertyValueFactory For example, I have this beans:
