

Hi Guys, Please help me, i know the answer is just to click on uninstall in the synaptic package manager but it closes my 1½ year old laptop. I tried uninstalling it through synaptic package manager it closes my laptop and synaptic package manager closes A: Try to do the following `sudo dpkg -P gdm3` That should deinstall it. If you want to run that command, you have to open terminal window. If you want to turn it off permanently, do the following `sudo apt-get remove gdm3`

Q: Two equally sized images, one centered, the other at top of the page I am trying to put two images (both have the same size, and each should be equally sized, although one is to be centered and the other one is to be aligned at the top of the page). What is the most elegant way of doing this? I've tried some ideas like `\includegraphics`, which works well for a single image, but not for the two of them. Ideally I would like to put it in a 'figure'-like environment, as that would be easier to include two images at the same place later on. EDIT In fact, there are two images at the top, but they shall not overlap, otherwise the top images would get cropped and the bottom one would not be visible. The figure

`\includegraphics[width=0.25\textwidth]{picture1}`

use `\setlength{\useplacement}{top}` to ensure the containing box is not shrunk as you move the images around. `\documentclass{article} \usepackage{graphicx}`

`\centering \includegraphics[width=\textwidth]{example-image-a}`

`\includegraphics[width=\textwidth]{example-image-b} \end{figure} \end{document}`
